Tulane Libraries Recovery Center will process a projected 300,000 items that Tulane Libraries own and that also received damaged during Hurricane Katrina. This includes music scores, music books, microforms, government documents, and archival materials. This multi-year project commenced in February 2008 and the firm, Library Associates Companies, will reintegrate the salvaged and restored materials back into the library catalog and collections. Library Associates Companies will also catalog and process thousands of donated materials that will be added to the collections at Tulane University Libraries.

Howard-Tilton Memorial Library and Library Associates Companies invite you to celebrate the Grand Opening of the Tulane Libraries Recovery Center. Join us at the Recovery Center where you can learn more about the salvage and restoration of the library materials and take a tour of the facility.
